The JCB range uses specialized treatments and yarns, these that are used include.

REACTIVE™

Reactive Yarn Technology

Warmer than wool and lighter than polyester and nylon, this yarn provides bulk and warmth for less weight. With hydrophobic qualities it is quick drying, wicking moisture away from the skin and through the fabric for quick evaporation.

Trevira Bioactive

Trevira Bioactive is a new generation of polyester fibre with silver ions permanently embedded. Compared to conventional polyester, the fibre is much improved in terms of strength and breathability, as well as having antimicrobial properties.

Coolmax

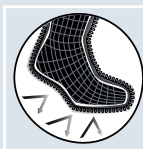

COOLMAX® technology is engineered for everyday comfort and performance with added cooling and drying benefits.

Aegis

A specially designed treatment which helps keep your socks fresh and odour free.

Anti-Shock

Cushion looping gives comfort, absorbs sweat, and acts as a barrier between the foot and ground for added shock absorption.

Ventilation

In regular and extreme conditions feet can get irritated by heat and sweat from all the action on a busy day, ventilation panels aim to reduce this issue and let feet breathe.

Flexible Support

We have a range of knit structures to support the movement and support you need day to day, whether you need a firm grip or a relaxed hold for better circulation.

Blister Protection

Reinforced heel and toe areas for extra protection from rubbing within shoes and work boots.

PROTECTIVE GLOVES AGAINST MECHANICAL RISKS

THE EN388 STANDARD EXPLAINED: EN388:2003 - EN388:2011 - EN388:2016

EN388 is a piece of legislation which provides information about the mechanical resistance of safety gloves in a format which is easy to understand. Gloves which conform to EN 388 are rated using four numbers; these numbers tell you how resistant the gloves are to mechanical hazards. You can use this information to ensure that your workers are protected in an appropriate way.
